Social Matchbox Launching 11 Startups in DC

AUGUST 18, 2009

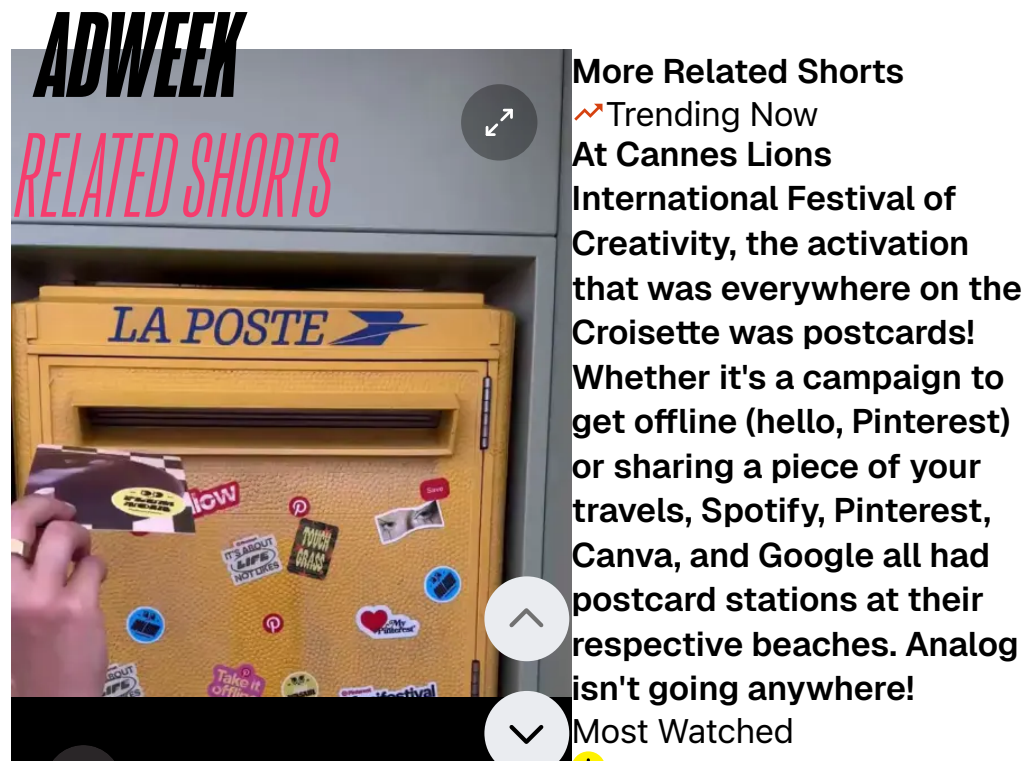

BY KRISTEN NICOLE

Spurring the technology and web startup economy, especially in areas outside of the valley, is of particular interest to Social Matchbox, an event bridging entrepreneurs with industry professionals in the DC area. The group's next event takes place Thursday, August 20th, and will feature the launching of eleven DC startups.

What started out as a job fair for startup founders seeking sweat equity and full-time, paid employees has evolved into a more inclusive event for debuting companies as well as networking with others in respective and cross-fields of interest. With two years of events for the startup community, Social Matchbox is moving its event to a new location and kicking off the autumn season with a renewed sense of encouragement for professionals out there.

The advertisement features a solid orange background. At the top, the Doordash logo (a white 'D' icon) is followed by the text 'DOORDASH Ads' in white. Below this, the headline 'TOOTHBRUSH ORDERS SPIKE NEARLY 30% ON DATE NIGHT' is written in large, bold, white and dark blue capital letters. Underneath the headline, the tagline 'Life happens. We'll make sure you're there for it.' is written in a smaller, white, sans-serif font. At the bottom, there is a white pill-shaped button with the text 'Learn more' in orange. To the right of the button, two toothbrushes are shown: one with a pink handle and one with a blue handle, both with white heads and bristles. The handles of the two toothbrushes are intertwined in a figure-eight shape.
